Dono Complaints Policy

Version 3.0 · Effective 7 August 2026 Document type: Public policy, referred to from clause 33.1 of the Terms of Service Supersedes version 2.3 (6 August 2026) and all earlier versions.

1. Purpose and scope

1.1 This is the Complaints Policy referred to in clause 33.1 of the Terms of Service. It explains how to complain about anything Dono has done or failed to do, how we investigate and decide complaints, and what happens if you remain unhappy.

1.2 There is one address for every kind of complaint: joindono.team@gmail.com. You do not need to work out which process applies. Dono routes the complaint, links related moderation or refund cases, tells you which route applies and records the applicable deadline.

1.3 Three processes, three clocks. They exist because different laws impose different obligations, not because we like paperwork.

If your complaint is about...	It is handled under...	We acknowledge within
Content, moderation, removal of your campaign or comment, suspension of your account, a report you made that we did not act on, or our online-safety duties	Community Guidelines clause 8	5 Working Days
How we have used, held, shared or deleted your personal data; a data request we handled badly; a data breach	Data Protection Complaints Workflow	30 days
Anything else — fees, delays, technical faults, verification, or the way a process was handled	This policy	2 Working Days

Where a complaint covers more than one, we use the shortest acknowledgement period and answer each element under its own process.

1.4 This policy covers complaints about, among other things: account suspension or restriction (clause 22 of the Terms); campaign removal or an institution report (clause 23); student-status or campaign verification, including delays or outcomes (clauses 6 and 7.3); technical problems; fees

(clause 16); and how a refund request was handled — for example an unreasonable delay. It is not limited to these examples.

1.5 This policy does not cover:

(a) the substantive decision on whether a refund is due, which is decided under the Refund and Dispute Policy and has its own appeal route. You can still complain here about the service you received during that process; (b) a decision for which the Terms already give you a dedicated appeal right — moderation, removal, suspension, or refusal or withdrawal of a student-status check. Those are all appealed under clause 8 of the Community Guidelines, which is the single framework for challenging a decision. You may still complain here about how that process was handled.

1.6 Where a matter could go through both a dedicated appeal route and this policy, Dono creates one lead case and does not run duplicate decisions on the same point. Dono confirms the route and preserves links to every related case.

2. How to complain

2.1 Send your complaint to joindono.team@gmail.com, or use the reporting form if it concerns content.

2.2 To help us deal with it promptly, please include: your account details, if you have an account; what happened and when; which Campaign or Donation it relates to, if any; the outcome you are looking for; and any supporting evidence.

2.3 A complaint is "complete" once Dono has what it reasonably needs to investigate it (clause 2.4 of the Terms of Service). If information is missing, Dono sends one consolidated request where practicable and records when the response clock is paused and resumed.

2.4 You do not need a Dono account to complain, and you do not need to have used Dono.

3. Complaint timescales

3.1 The timescales below are operational targets, not contractual guarantees. They give you a sense of what to expect and give us flexibility where a complex fraud investigation or legal issue takes longer.

3.2 Acknowledgement. Within 2 Working Days of receipt.

3.3 Initial assessment. Normally within 10 Working Days of a complete complaint — including whether we need more information, or whether the matter involves a third party such as the Payment Provider or an Institution.

3.4 Substantive response. Dono aims to respond within 14 Working Days of a complete complaint. Where more time is required, Dono sends the reason and a revised target date.

3.5 Internal review. Normally completed within a further 10 Working Days.

3.6 Urgent matters — anything involving an immediate risk to a person, child safety, or suspected illegal content — are handled straight away and outside these timescales.

4. Investigation and response

4.1 Dono assigns a case owner, preserves the relevant records, and examines decisions, correspondence, audit events and evidence supplied by the parties. Where a complaint concerns a team member's decision, that person may provide factual context but does not decide the internal review.

4.2 If your complaint touches on a live safeguarding, fraud or law-enforcement matter, Dono limits or delays that part of the response only to the extent that answering fully would compromise it. Dono explains the limitation wherever lawful.

4.3 Our substantive response explains what we found, what (if anything) we are doing about it, and how to ask for an internal review.

5. Internal review

5.1 If you are not satisfied with our substantive response, ask for an internal review within 14 days of receiving it. We may accept a later request in exceptional circumstances.

5.2 Who reviews it. The review is carried out by a member of the Dono team who was not substantially involved in the original decision, applying conflict-of-interest and recusal rules. Where the original decision was made by Amrit Kaur Rooprai, another team member conducts the review first. Where the size of our team genuinely prevents separation, the original decision-maker may reconsider — but only as a documented, genuine second look at the original evidence and any new information you provide, recorded as such. We do not promise independence we cannot deliver. For particularly complex or high-risk complaints we may take external legal or specialist advice. Amrit retains final decision-making authority as the operator. This mirrors clause 8.5 of the Community Guidelines; the process is deliberately the same wherever you read about it.

5.3 Possible outcomes. The original decision may be confirmed, varied or reversed, including restoring content, campaign functionality or account access where appropriate.

6. Final response

6.1 The internal review produces Dono's final response to your complaint.

6.2 Alternative dispute resolution. Each final response to a consumer complaint contains the alternative-dispute-resolution information required by applicable law, including Chapter 4 of Part 4 of the Digital Markets, Competition and Consumers Act 2024 where it applies. The response states whether Dono is required or agrees to use an approved ADR provider and identifies that provider where applicable. Dono does not represent that it participates in ADR where no legal, regulatory or contractual participation duty applies.

6.3 Nothing in this policy affects your statutory rights, your right to bring a claim in the courts under clause 32 of the Terms of Service, your right to complain to the Information Commissioner's Office about a data matter, your right to complain to Ofcom about an online-safety matter, or any right you have against the Payment Provider directly.

7. Records

7.1 Dono records every complaint — the intake route, category, linked cases, dates, owner, evidence, communications, decision and reasons, internal review, outcome and remedial action — and retains the record for six years from closure. Tamper-evident audit events record access and changes. Dono reviews the complaints log monthly for recurring problems, missed service targets and required policy or product changes.
